As a result, the Bell homestead ~~lay~~^{stood} on neutral ground between the two contending² armies. It was in this delicate position that its members became involved in one of the tragedies of the war, the murder of Jane McCrea. The details of this sad event have been oft-repeated in the years that followed, both in song and story. There have been numerous versions, many not completely true. The most reliable, however, seems to be that related by Mr. Islay V. H. Gill, based on years of investigation, and published in 1956 by the Washington ^{County} Historical Society. Here it is, ~~showing~~^{revealing} the roles played by members of the Bell family.

TAYLOR. If Abraham Losee Taylor was a Loyalist, proof may be obtained by writing to Provincial Archives, Parl't Bldgs., Toronto, asking him for list of sons and daughters of Loyalists by name of Taylor or Tyler (Reed Index). This list shows Abigail Bell, dau. of Duncan, as wife of Alexander Taylor of Fredericksburgh. Langhorn's Parish Register of Fredericksburgh records the baptism ~~Dec~~ April 14, 1811, of James Hough, son of Abram and Abigail Taylor. Other entries possibly belonging to this line are:

John Taylor (buried Dec. 11, ~~1789~~ 1789) and wife Agnes, whose son Allen was bapt. Aug. 31, 1788.

Sarah Taylor and Alpheus Cadman, both of St. Paul's Church, Fredericksburgh, married Oct. 4, 1802.

U. E. List notes John Taylor, Sergt. 34th Reg't. (Evidently John buried in 1789).

John Taylor, Corp. King's American Reg't.

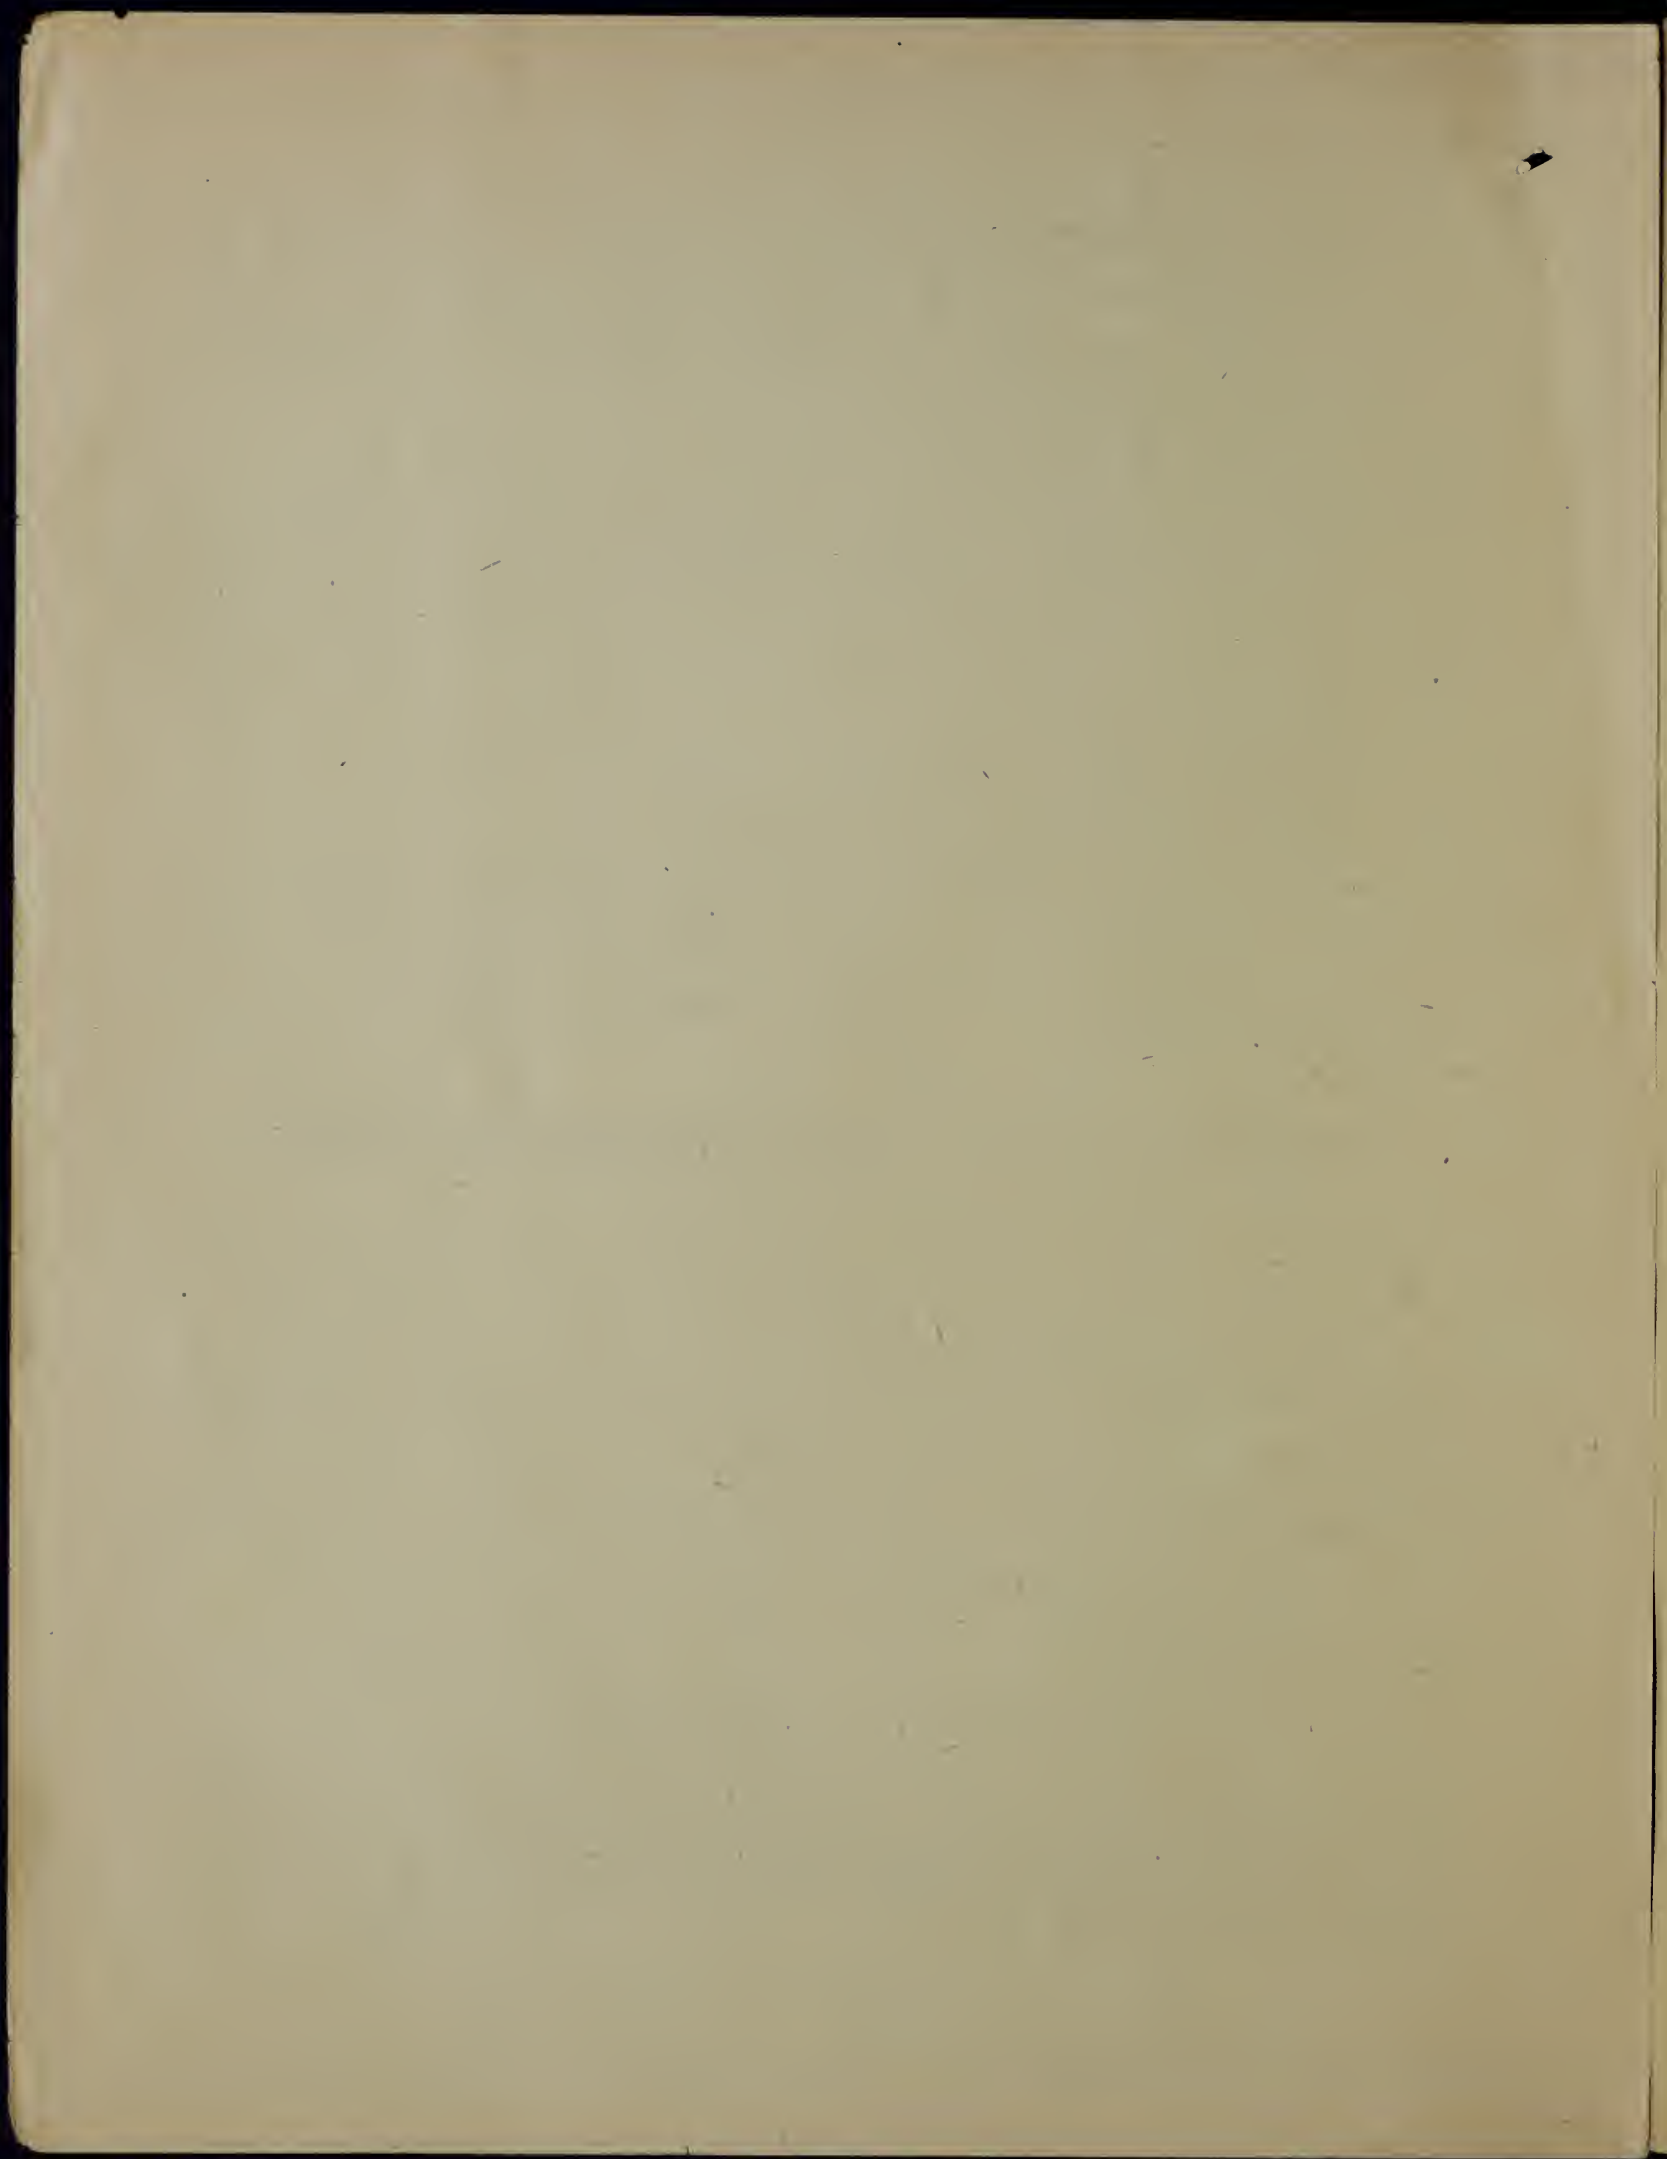

William Taylor, Jr., son of Sergt. Taylor of 34th Reg't.

Jared Tyler (Tyler), soldier Loyal Rangers. (This Jared was a witness for Loyalist claimants from Berkshire and New Ashford, Mass.)

BELL. William Bell and wife Flora emigrated from Scotland to America about 1760, and finally settled at Fort Edward, N.Y. Possibly William was a soldier during conquest of Canada and took his discharge in New York State, locating on military grants, as above. He remained loyal during Revolution, and was imprisoned on that account in Aug., 1780. He was released Feb. 19, 1781, when he was 'of Fort Edward, farmer.' He eventually settled in Fredericksburgh with wife and children. He was buried there Sept. 29, 1786, and she on Nov. 12, 1795.

Known children:

1. William. He was born in Scotland and came to America when young. Was a farmer at Fort Edward in 1777. Joined the King's Rangers in that year and served until the peace in 1783. U. E. List calls him sergeant. Either he or his father was serg't.-major in King's Rangers, which was the northern battalion of the famous Rogers' Rangers. He settled in Fredericksburgh in June, 1784. Wife was named Anne. Sanborn

2. Duncan, born in Scotland; lived at Fort Edward as a farmer. Joined the King's Rangers in 1778. Served until the peace as sergeant. Settled in Fredericksburgh in 1784. He married about 1785 Anna, daughter of Isaac Drisco, U.E., and his wife Ruth, daughter of Jehiel Hawley and Sarah Dunning, of Newtown, Conn., and Arlington, Vt. Their children were:

1. John, born about 1786; marr. Catherine Sharpe.
2. Ruth, bap. Fredericksburgh Jan. 1, 1789; marr. Gilbert Sharpe.
3. Flora, bap. " Apr. 17, 1791; bur. Feb. 3, 1802.
4. Abigail, bap. " Apr. 27, 1794; mar. Abner Taylor.
5. Isaac.
6. Eleanor, bap. " May 26, 1799; mar. Jonathan Phillips.
7. Jehiel, bap. " Oct. 10, 1802.
8. William, bap. " Aug. 11, 1805.
9. Flora Ann, mar. Daniel Chapman.

3. Thomas, of Fredericksburgh, soldier in Royal Reg't of New York; mar. Hannah.

4. Ann, mar. July, 1788 Lambert Van Alstine.

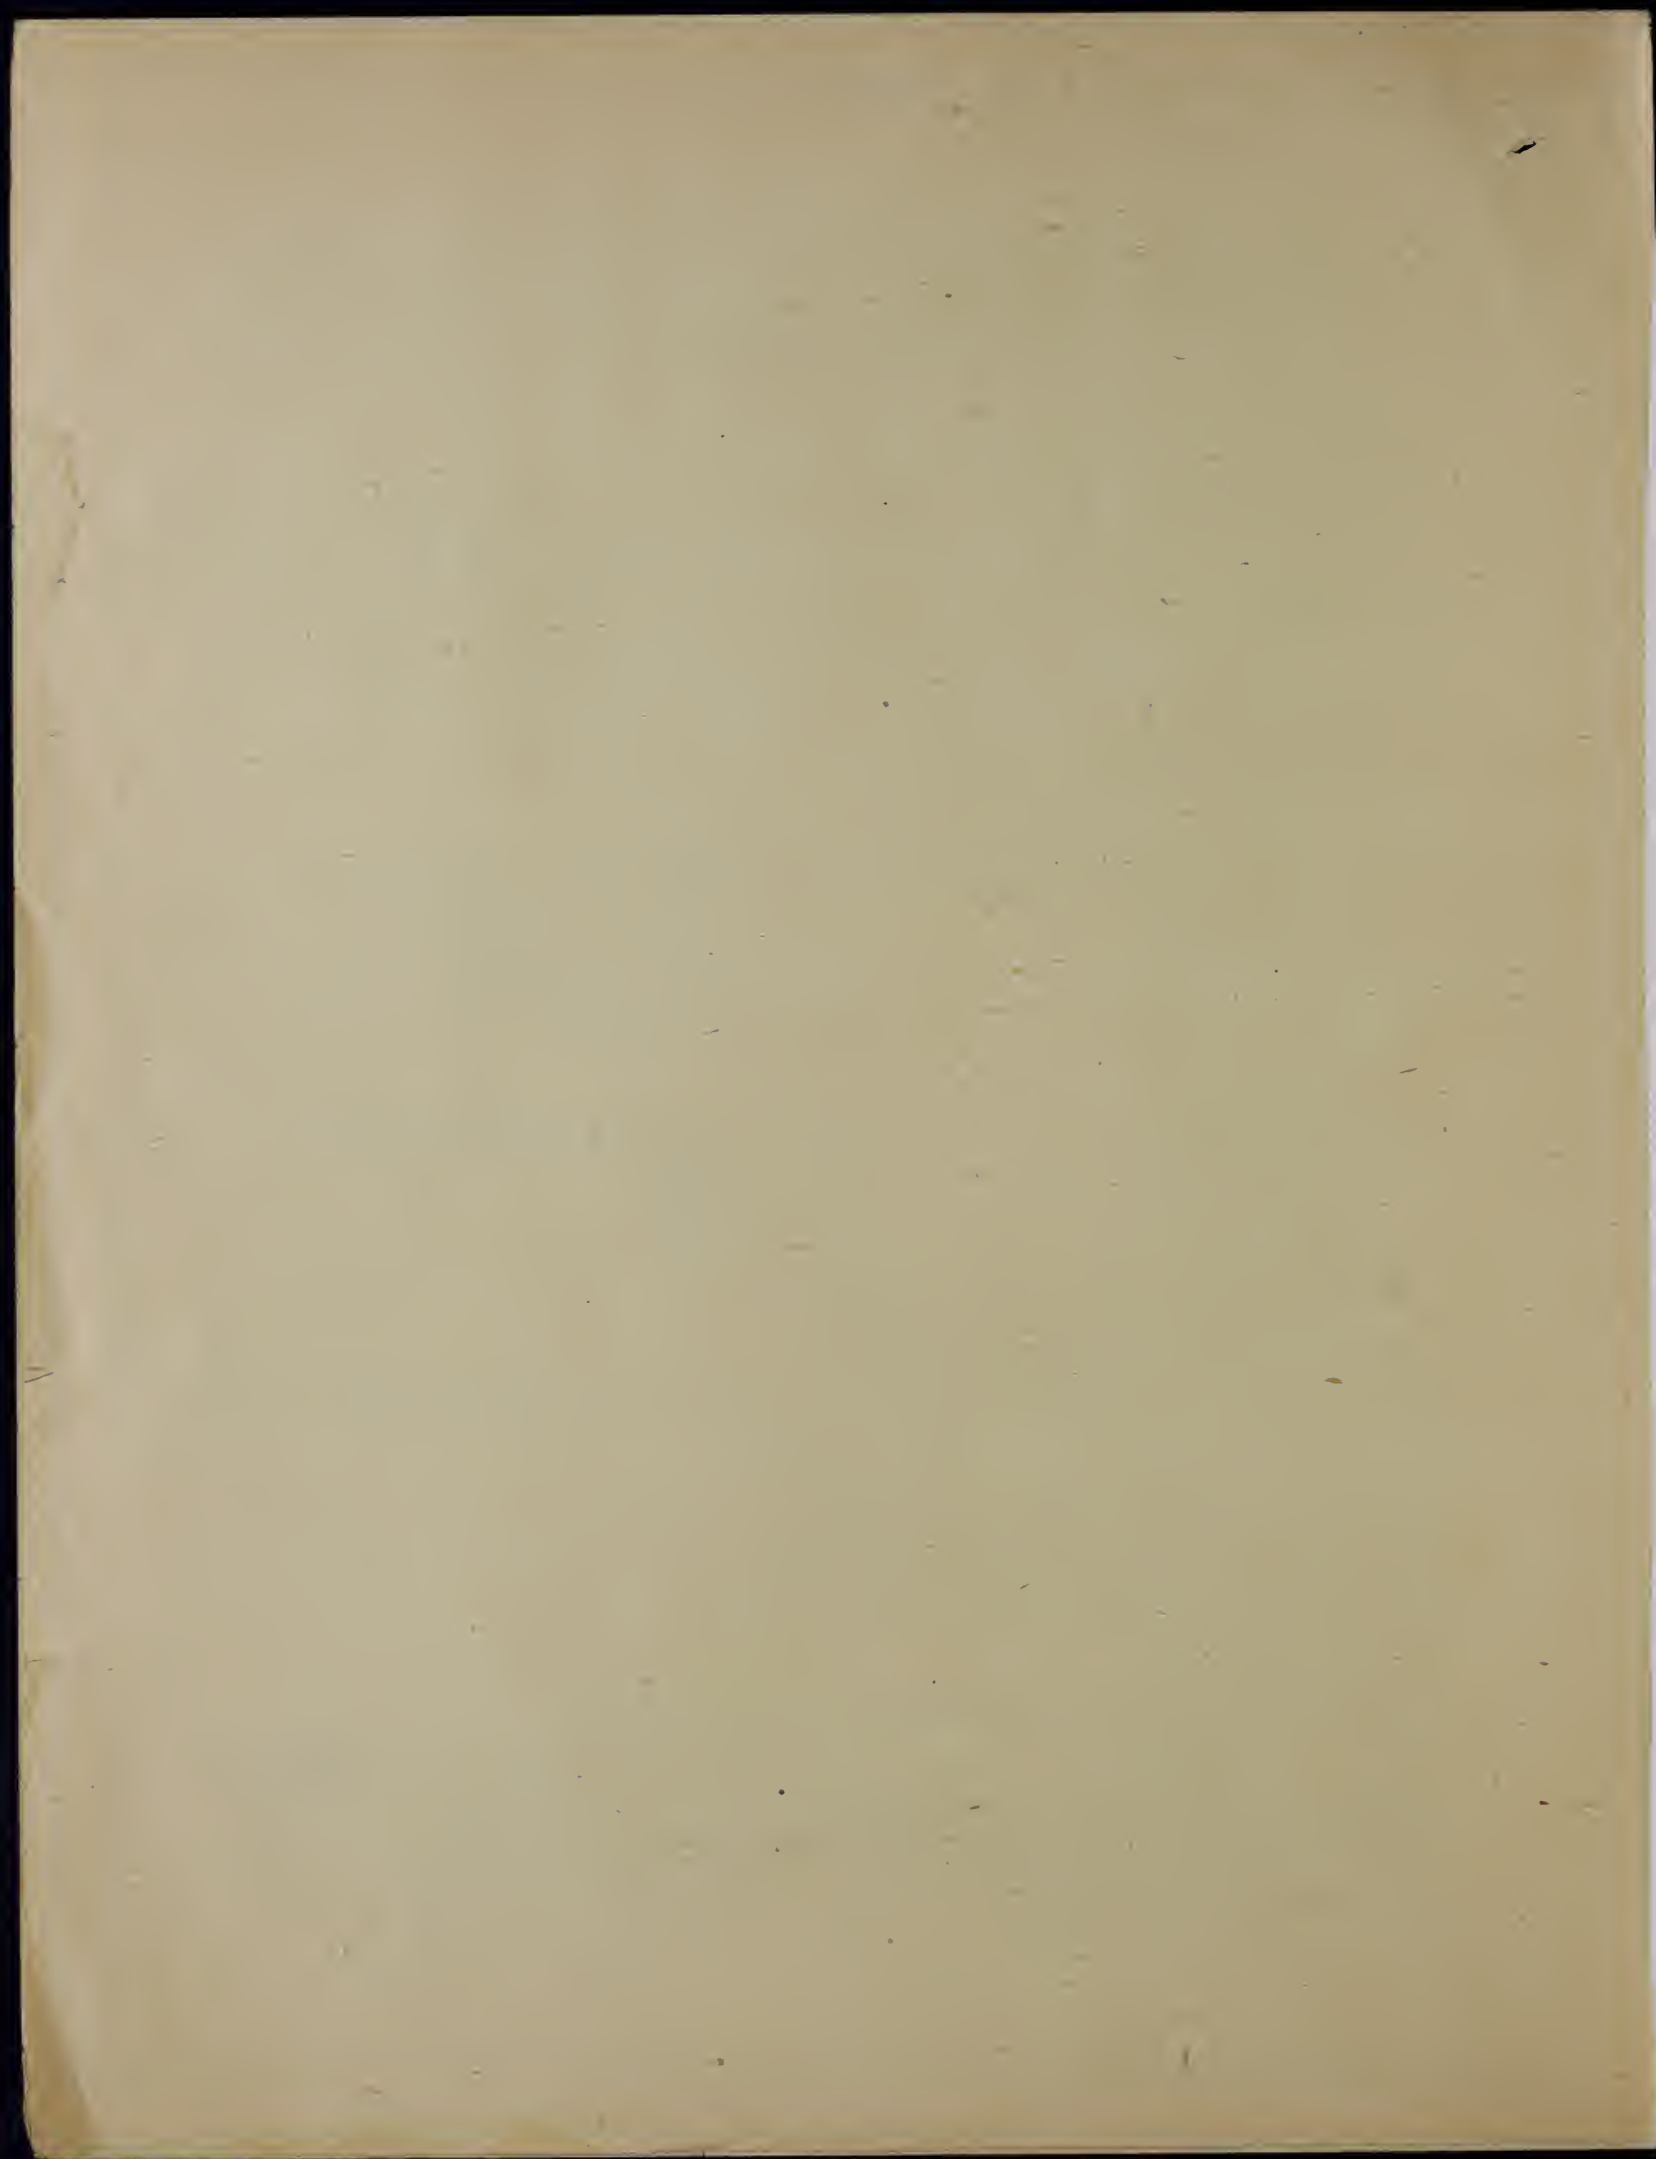

5. Ellen, mar. May 11, 1790, Asa Hough.

6. Isabel, mar. Feb. 23, 1794, Johannis Sill.

7. Probably Margaret

8. Probably Francis, who mar. Oct. 17, 1799, Jane Detlor.

Bell family tree traced at reunion

22 August 1979

NAPANEE — When William Bell left the parish of Castleton in Linsdale, Scotland, in 1772 for the risk-filled voyage to North America, he would have been hard put to believe the number of descendants who met at the Springdale Park, last Sunday.

More than one hundred persons gathered for a pot luck picnic to honor and welcome Jack Smithback and his wife, Helen,

(a direct descendant of William), residents of San Jose, Calif.

Arthur Bell of Kingston outlined the Bell story from their settlement in United States near Fort Edward through their migration to Canada after the American Revolution. The family were among the United Empire Loyalists who remained loyal to the British crown, who gave up many possessions in the states, and worked diligently to open up a forest covered Southern Ontario.

An interesting anecdote in the Bell history is the story of Jane McCrae. While two "Bell" sons were working on their farm, a party of Indians escorting Jane to the safety of the British Army met a second group of Indians. In a skirmish between the two groups, Jane was killed and scalped. The Bell family had no alternative but to bury her body in their cornfield. Some years later the American authorities had the body removed and a historical plaque now marks the spot where she lives.

Allen Carscallen of Kingston told of the relationship between his branch of the family and the Bell line. They, too, had come to Canada as Loyalists after the American Revolution. A marriage between William Bell, Jr., son of William, to Anne Carscallen joined the two lines.

Another branch connected to the Bell family was that of the Hogeboom's, a relationship going back to the marriage of James Hogeboom to Maria Bell, granddaughter of William.

Clarence Hogeboom

outlined the Hogeboom story. It is a tradition in the Hogeboom family that in the home of Jeremias Hogeboom, built before 1760 in the village of Claverack, the poem "A Visit from St. Nicholas" was written for the Hogeboom children while C. C. Moore was visiting them.

Although the Bell family were of Scottish origin, Donald Paul told of a French connection to the line since his mother's family were descendants of the Briaults, his father's family descendants of the Bells and Carscallens.

Mrs. Hugh Reid of Enterprise made the arrangements for the day. Mr. Donald Paul, chairman of the event, welcomed the guests who came from as far away as Florida, Whitby, Oshawa, Agincourt, Trenton, and many areas around Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Smithback are, at present, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Hogeboom, Napanee.

Sproule contends that Ducharme is using political clout to renege on a verbal agreement made with Ontario Hydro, to allow anyone to tap into his line.

The neighbor's dispute came to light after Frontenac-Addington MPP J. Earl McEwen became involved. In a statement, McEwen's office charges that Hydro has shown "favoritism" to Ducharme, who also served as president of the Ottawa South Progressive Conservative Association.

Sproule said he felt there was "deliberate hanky panky going on" when he found Ducharme controlled the new line, which is essential to operation of his 25 campsites and three cottages. He said Ducharme is pressuring him in order to force him to sell his property. "He would love to get it if it were for sale," Sproule said.

PICTON — Although Prince Edward County Council has agreed to meet with members of the county swimming pool committee to learn of the present standing of the project, Warden Ben Prinzen said he did not think the pool "was going to go."

Prinzen said he had not found any community support for the proposed Olympic size swimming pool at Prince Edward College. He said

The warden said provincial grants for swimming pools were harder to obtain and he has learned that municipalities that had these facilities faced annual operating costs of between $60,000 and $90,000 a year.

Dear Doctor:

Your interesting letter of 22 December 1975 has been very much on my mind. You will recall it concerned the Duncan Bell family.

I would be very much interested in learning what you feel your services would be worth to write out what you know of Duncan Bell and his ancestry. I am especially interested in any information you might have on his children and any possible living relatives.

I would also like to know what typing costs you would incur to complete your tasks.

I am also interested in any info you might have on William Bell's vital statistics, i. e. death, birth, etc., the father of Duncan.

My dear Doctor, as soon as you could give me an estimate of your very gas and those of clerical assistance I would get right back to you.

My delay in writing has been due to a brief illness. I hope this finds you well.

Dear Dr. Burleigh:

Your name has been given me as a genealogist who has a familiarity with the BELL line in Ontario, Canada.

I am a descendant of Jehial Bell who was a descendant of Duncan BELL, a son of William Bell and Flora McCorquadale, who lived in the Fredericksburgh area of Ontario. It is my understanding Duncan BELL was a Lieutenant in the war of 1812.

Do you have any knowledge of a Duncan BELL?

Your courtesy in replying will be very much appreciated.

Sincerely,

Thomas G. Bell

Sherwood in Colonel Graham's 3rd Regiment of the State Levies, organized July 1st, 1780. The article previously referred to from the Albany Evening News says that Dr. Smyth sold the old Red House to Ezekiel Baldwin, who kept it as an inn. Through successive remodeling this building was known as the Mansion House and later the Milliman House, which stood on the north-east corner of State street and lower Broadway. The same article gives the old inn as the gathering place for the Sons of Liberty during the Revolution. The Fort Edward Book locates the Baldwin inn at this place, but states that it was operated first by Alexander and later by Samuel Baldwin and also places the scene of the earliest justice court here before 1800, which was ruled over by Matthias Ogden, later the first postmaster of the settlement. Corey's Gazetteer, however, gives James Rogers as the first incumbent of the latter office. The census of 1790 gives Alexander Baldwin, also Alexander, Jr., and Cornelius, his sons, as residents of "Argyle Town" that year.

Just what determined the Durkee and other Connecticut families to settle in Fort Edward is an unanswered question, but it may possibly have been the accounts carried home from this locality by Connecticut soldiers who served here during the French and Indian War and I have already called attention to soldiers of this name who were stationed at Fort Edward during these campaigns. There was apparently a very early road from Fort Edward to the Connecticut settlements, for in Pouchot's Memoirs previously quoted, he says: "There is a road (1760) from Fort Edward, leading to Connecticut and Boston." We have also noticed during one of the campaigns an order regarding "the Connecticut troops who are coming through the wood," instead of the usual route by way of Albany.

THE BELL FAMILY

The county histories mention a family named Bell as coming to Fort Edward at about the same time as the Durkees and Saunderses and settling in the north part of the town. In Robert Blake's description of the Smyth house, previously mentioned, he speaks of residing with his uncle, Mr. Bell, who lived about half a mile north of the village. Holden (page 428) quotes Judge Hay's statement that near the top of the Fort Edward Hill, not far from the site occupied by the old Grove House, was a tavern kept by a Tory named Bell. I believe this was William Bell, who is mentioned in the following paragraph. The only person of this name mentioned in the first census is Epaphras Bell, presumably connected with the original settler.

On August 29th, 1780, Joseph Hawkins, Thomas Yarns and William Bell were apprehended by the order of Albert Baker, John Moss, and Noah Pain, three of the justices of the peace of Charlotte County, and brought before the Committee for Detecting and Defeating Conspiracies, at Albany, charged with having been with the enemy. A mittimus was made out and they were committed to the Albany gaol. On December 12th the board received a petition signed by a number of the inhabitants of Kingsbury for the release of these prisoners, which was laid on the table. It was not until February 19th, 1781, that William Bell, of Fort Edward, was discharged from confinement under bail of one hundred pounds. The committee further stipulated that, inasmuch as he lived on the frontiers and had it within his power to aid and comfort the enemy, he be ordered to remove into the interior parts of the state by April 1st.

THE JONES FAMILY AND OTHER MOREAU PIONEERS

Sir William Johnson wrote the Lords of Trade, on October 30th, 1764, regarding the Kayaderosseras Patent, as follows: "From the date of the Kayaderosseras patent in 1708 to 1754, no settlement whatever was made thereon, nor hath the same ever been surveyed or any partition made thereof as yet by the patentees; and this notorious neglect, to the predudice of the colony, had the grant been equitable, can only be attributed to their consciousness of its iniquity. Since then some of the proprietors without knowing their own shares, have very lately encouraged some families who, according to the best information, do not exceed a dozen in number, to settle on some parts of the patent towards Fort Edward, and in the neighborhood of Saratoga Lake, but the Mohawk hunters, having come across their huts last year warned them off, with which some have complied." In 1768 a settlement was finally made with the Mohawk Indians and the settlement began in earnest.

Twelve families are said to have located on the west bank of the Hudson between Fort Edward and Fort Miller on the Kayaderosseras Patent up to the beginning of the Revolution. The most important in the eyes of the local historian, and possibly the first family to arrive, was that of a widow named Jones, and her six sons—Jonathan, John, Dunham, Daniel, David and Solomon. (Wilson's Life of Jane McCrea, page 16.) An article by Honeyman in the Somerset County Historical Quarterly for October, 1918 (page 252), mentions one other son, Thomas, and two daughters, names not given. The author of this sketch presumes that the father was a Welshman and married a Sarah Dunham. The family came from Lamington, N. J., apparently under the same impulse that brought their neighbors, the McCreas, to this same vicinity. David and Solomon remained with the mother on what was afterwards known as the old Rogers place, now the Taylor farm, while the other four boys continued on to Kingsbury and settled in the vicinity of Moss Street. Here Daniel purchased a large tract of land and soon after became interested in the erection of a saw and grist mill in Queensbury. He afterwards married a daughter of Abraham Wing and but for the Revolution, which forced him to flee to Canada, would probably have become one of the early influential men of this part of the country. (See Holden, page 72.)

David and Daniel Jones are both said to have been millwrights and if so, David's time must have been well taken with his brother's building operations at Wing's Falls, while Solomon no doubt remained at home and worked the farm. At the beginning of the Revolution, David was listed as captain of the 7th company in the 13th regiment from the Saratoga district. Another list gives him as a lieutenant in the Saratoga district regiment of militia, but according to a letter from Captain John Graham, dated at Fort Miller, July 11th, 1775, to the Albany Committee of Correspondence, he refused to accept the commission. Later on he joined the British army, the family having upheld the Loyalist cause. The incidents which followed this action resulted in the death of his former neighbor and fiancée, Jane McCrea.

The following material is taken from a note in Burgoyne's orderly book (Munsell 1860) and relates to this family: "When the family withdrew to Canada, Daniel located at Brockville, where he engaged successfully in business. His oldest son was sent to England to complete his education, but was a profligate spendthrift who came to nothing. His two other sons, by a second wife, Daniel and David, were lawyers in Brockville, and the latter was recently and perhaps is still the county clerk there, the former being deceased. After their father's death, some thirty or forty years since, one of these sons came to Sandy Hill to recover something for the lands from which, he said, his father was forcibly driven. His advent produced considerable excitement in that village, but he was forced to withdraw and abandon the business. The widow Jones house stood some twenty rods below the stone house of Halsey Rogers. At this place was the principal ferry on the river, which continued to be known as the Jones ferry many years after the family had left. Philander Doty succeeded the widow Jones, and the house was destroyed at the time of Carleton's invasion in 1780." (Page 187.) This account, of which Dr. Asa Fitch was the author, also says that both David and Daniel were members of Peter's corps in the British army during the campaign of 1777. Bascom, however, says that Daniel was the only one of the boys who did not enter the British army, although he was driven from his lands as a Tory.

The following letter from Mrs. C. H. Jackson, of Brockville, Ontario, Canada, a great-great niece of David Jones, to the late J. A. Holden, of Glens Falls, is dated April 24, 1921, and to the best of my knowledge has never been published. I give the following extract through the courtesy of Mrs. Holden: "Lieut. Jones is buried near Prescott in the quaintest old burial ground of one of the first churches erected in these parts. It is called the "Blue Church" and is close to the river; a beautiful spot and with a small grove of pine trees just beside it. He never married and is said never to have smiled after the tragedy had deprived him of his fiancée."

Just when the Jones family were obliged to leave Fort Edward cannot be stated, but it was probably during the summer of 1777. General Thos. Rogers acquired the farm after the Revolution and, according to some accounts, had bargained for it prior to the war. In either event, he is supposed to have taken possession with his family in 1783 and the presumption is that the estate was confiscated and he thereby acquired it at public sale. The Rogers are claimed to be descended by in John Rogers, the famous New England man. This property remained in their family a good many years and at one time was maintained in a very fine manner. Col. Rogers was the first owner of the town of Moreau from 1805 to 1808 inclusive. He had three sons, Thomas, James and Hilse, and a grandson, John Rogers, who is in possession of the place some late in the last century.

Other interesting traditions of early settlers on the west side have been handed down by the old Saratoga County histories. Another family named Rogers is said to have lived within the bounds of what was the Rogers farm in later years and the Rogers were accused of having tried to kill them by poisoning their milk. A Deacon Sherrill lived next below the Rogers place; then, Captain Tuttle at the mouth of the Snook Kill and whose house was burned during Burgoyne's invasion. (See reference under Butler's account of Fort Edward in 1779.) On the old Olmstead farm just below the Snook Kill, formerly the name of Hutton, was probably the first grist mill and below him lived John Michals. Another early but unassigned name on the west side was that of Harrington. At Forts the Abraham J. Fort who later remodeled the Van Slichten house and gave it the name of the "old Fort Mause" was an early settler but not a pioneer. A genealogical table of the family may be found in Schuyler's Colonial New York.

Moreau was named for Marshall Moreau, of France, who came to America in 1824. The town was organized March 28th, 1795. See Sylvester's History of Saratoga County.

THE FORT

On August 26th, 1766 Hugh Munro, a disabled, non-commissioned officer of the 77th regiment, was granted the larger part of what is now known as the "Island." A previously mentioned, the Island at that time was divided by a stream which made the present sound point a separate island with an area of about ten acres. The following portion of the grant is copied from the original parchment document now in the possession of the Duell family of this village.

"Granted unto our loving subject Hugh Munro, being a disabled, non-commissioned officer, having served in North America during the late war and last belonging to our 77th regiment of foot---All that certain land situate, lying and being on Hudson River, in the County of Albany, within our Province of New York, opposite Fort Edward and a tract of land granted to Stephen Bayard, said island containing forty-two acres of land reserving a road of four rods wide running north sixty-two degrees west from the usual ford paper it is stated that George Sills was 12 years of age, while his brother, John, was 10. We simply must believe the bible records, which states that John was older than George. If we do, then the names in the military record should be interchanged, and would then read:

Laurence, aged 14 years.
John, aged 12 years.
George, aged 10 years.

George was about five years of age when his mother died, likely following the birth of her last child, Peter, who was born 18 Jan., 1778. He was six when his father took his young, motherless family down the St. Lawrence River from Niagara to Machiche, Quebec. He enlisted in Sir John Johnson's 2nd Battalion, Royal Regiment of New York, on 23 July, 1782, at the age of nine years. He was one of the original settlers in the Township of Fredericksburgh in the Summer of 1784. As a Loyalist soldier, all his children, indeed, all his descendants, are entitled to inscribe the initials 'U.E.' after their names.

paper it is stated that George Sills was 12 years of age, while his brother, John, was 10. We simply must believe the bible records, which states that John was older than George. If we do, then the names in the military record should be interchanged, and would then read:

Laurence, aged 14 years.
John, aged 12 years.
George, aged 10 years.

George was about five years of age when his mother died, likely following the birth of her last child, Peter, who was born 18 Jan., 1778. He was six when his father took his young, motherless family down the St. Lawrence River from Niagara to Machiche, Quebec. He enlisted in Sir John Johnson's 2nd Battalion, Royal Regiment of New York, on 23 July, 1782, at the age of nine years. He was one of the original settlers in the Township of Fredericksburgh in the Summer of 1784. As a Loyalist soldier, all his children, indeed, all his descendants, are entitled to inscribe the initials 'U.E.' after their names.

George Sills married, about 1794, Margaret, daughter of William Bell, Sr., U.E.

I think it might help if you hurry them a little to get started. He is retired with plenty of time. Mr. Judson's address is 25 Victoria Ave, you would write them a note or invitation. They seemed anxious to join.

I have just received a lot get him too. So you see when you asked me to get some members I went right to work on it.

When the roads clear we are going to Fla. and I hope to have time down there to work on it. But I won't have a typewriter and it will be done by hand.

May I please ask a favor of you. You showed me those paper-covered histories of Washington Co., N. Y. No. 4 had many references to William and Duncan Bell. I wrote to the Wash. Co. Hist. Soc. and they never answered my letter. Do you remember where you got them and what they cost? I especially want Vol. 4.

You will be hearing from me with my blanks.

Best wishes for the U. E. L. Soc. and a Merry Christmas.

P.S. You showed me a list of people related to me. If it's not too much trouble could you send me the list? Sincerely Amy Lewis

Dear Dr. Burling:

Have meant to write you ever since I spent that delightful evening last summer at your house talking genealogy.

My health has been poor and not conducive to writing letters.

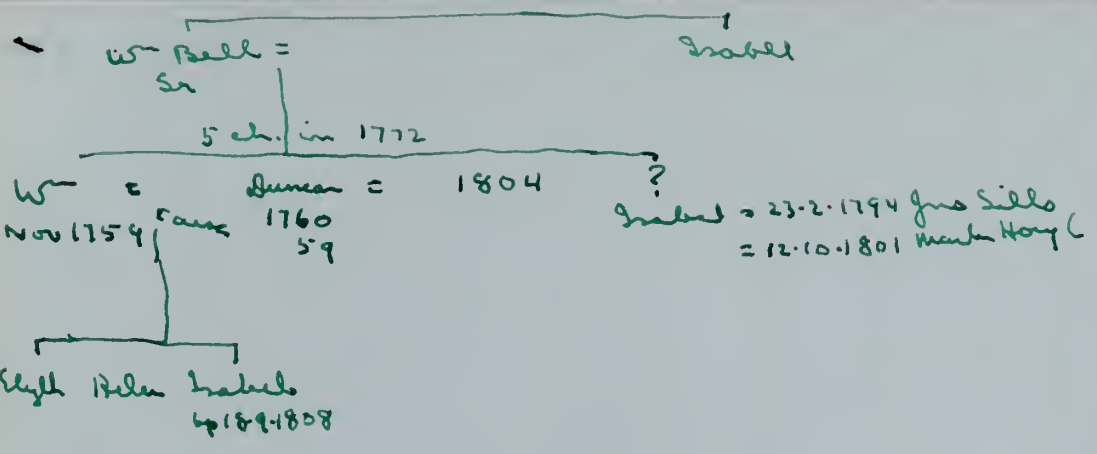

I visited Howard Brown of Ottawa at his Mississippi Lake home for a week. His great-grandfather James Brown & my gr. grandfather Asa were brothers. I had never seen him before though we had corresponded three years. It was he who found the name of Abraham Taylor's wife for me (Abigail Bell) and connected me with all the Lennox Co. Hawleys, Biscoes etc. with your help.

We also called on Dr. Arthur Judson and daughter Frances 66 of Brockville twice and had nice visits. They work at genealogy continually. They are descended from Silas Judson U. E. L. of Lyn, and his daughter married Josiah Brown, U. E. L. who was my gr gr grandfather.

The Judsons are buried at Lyn and Josiah Brown at Elgin.

I went right to work on Dr.
Judson and Frances and gave them blanks to join U. E. L. They seemed very happy about it and said they would join. Howard Brown took a blank too and said he would join.

I heard from him last week and he said when he started to make out the papers he was ashamed that he had no more about his mother's family and wants to work some on it.
But he is descended from Josiah Brown & Silas Judson and also from the Church family

Dear Dr. Burleigh:

Thank you so very much for your answer to my query for the children of Isaac Brisco and Ruth Hawley. From your answer last summer giving me the name of Anna Brisco as the wife of Duncan Bell I have been able to get all my families back into Connecticut to the immigrant ancestor. It has been a great thrill. They are the families of my Grandmother Brown, and I find them going back to at least three of the same families from which my Grandfather Brown comes. His people lived in Leeds Co., Ont.

The relative Howard M. Brown of Ottawa with whom I am in contact had become interested in my Bell-Brisco-Hawley families and has spent many hours in the Archives in Ottawa looking them up for me. He has sent me about twenty pages of vital records and copies of petitions of land. About the same time I got your answer, he had found the list of Isaac Brisco's children. He is a graduate of Queens College and I believe has done research for the government. His brother was Roy Brown the Ace who shot down Baron Von Richtofen.

I wrote to the U. E. Loyalists in regard to Abraham Taylor (my gr. gr. grandfather) who married Abigail Bell, dau. of Duncan ^{and} Anna Brisco, but they had no record of him being child of a Loyalist. He was born in 1782 in Dutchess Co., N. Y. I feel there is no doubt that his father was a Loyalist, but no proof that he was the John Taylor who married Agnes and lived in Lennox Co. The first cemetery in Belleville was the Taylor Cemetery and I went to look for it. It has been destroyed all but two or three tombstones lying on the ground. I found at the library in Belleville that there had been some litigation over it. Mr. Leonard Parks believed that my Taylors must have gone to Belleville as they did not leave much trace in Fredericksburg. However, the son of Abraham Taylor and Abigail Bell, (James Hough, my great grandfather) was born in Fredericksburgh. I hope to get to Dutchess County soon to search the records for the Taylors.

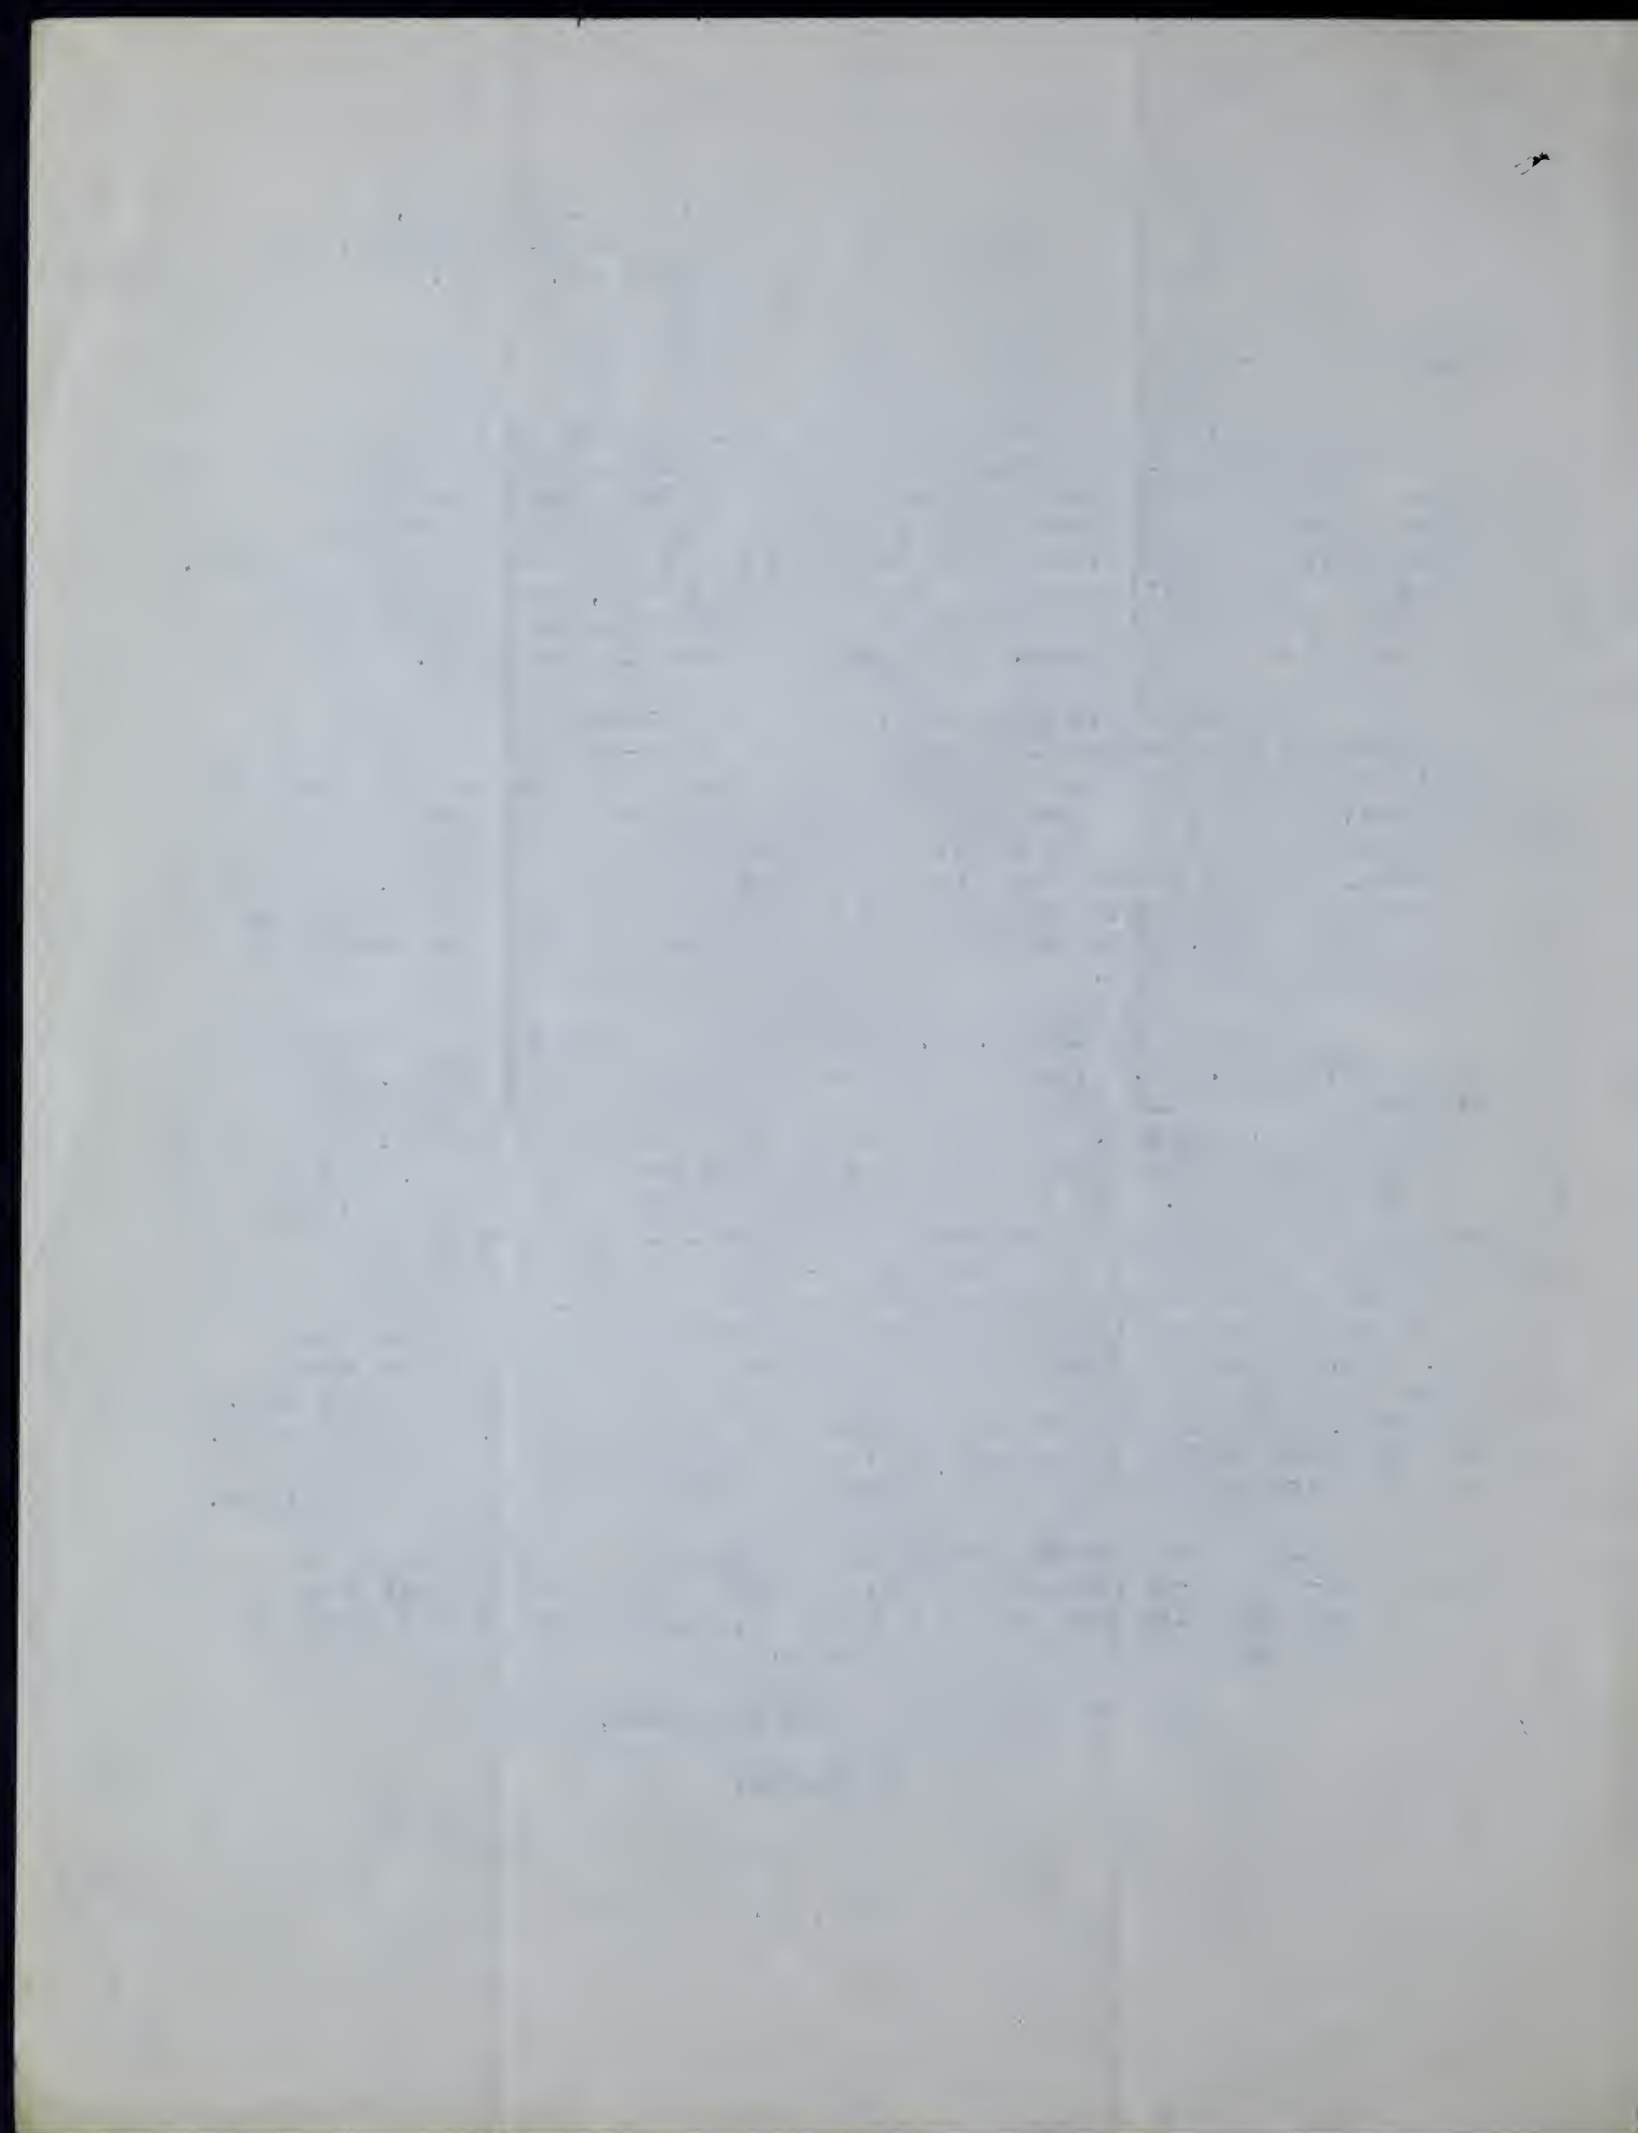

I am very much interested in knowing your relation to the Bell-Hawley-Brisco families. I want very much to get the entire Brisco line and think I have it, but there is the matter of proving one link before I am sure.

Thanking you again for your kindness, I am

Sincerely,

Amy Brown Lewis

(Mrs. L. Mortimer Lewis)

born in U.S. and was 71 years old in 1861.
lived in Ernesttown township, the next east of Fredericksburgh.
I have no relation to the Bell-Hawley Brisco families, except my interest in the ancestry of our old families, as noted above. At present, I have files on over 600 families in this region, practically all of them Loyalists.
If you are interested, let me hear from you.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mrs. Lewis:

Today I came across your letter of April 20, 1957, and reading it has awakened a new interest in your Bell-Brisco-Hawley family.
I say this because I have come across additional material, particularly about the Bells and Briscos. This material has to do with the 1777-1784 period, and I am willing to trade it for the ancestry of Duncan Bell and Isaac Brisco.
I may have told you that I have been collecting material about all the Loyalist families of this district for the past 25 years. I should therefore welcome any addition to my notes. I am hoping that this will include the first ancestor in America, his wife and children, as well as succeeding generations to the two men mentioned above.

Since first noting your query in the Hartford Times, we have started a branch of the U. E. L. Association in the Bay of Quinte area.
At present we have 189 members, with new ones coming in from time to time. I am the Branch genealogist, and it is for this reason that we wish to increase our knowledge of our ancestry.

I have been wondering if my second great grandmother, Mary (Polly) Brown, wife of Daniel Walker, might belong to your Browns. According to the Census records, she was born in U.S. and was 71 years old in 1861.
They lived in Ernesttown township, the next east of Fredericksburgh.

I have no relation to the Bell-Hawley Brisco families, except my interest in the ancestry of our old families, as noted above. At present, I have files on over 600 families in this region, practically all of them Loyalists.

I wrote a newspaper in St. John, N. B., because we found a Duncan and William Bell there and soon got an answer from the archivist of the Museum there, giving me quite a lot of information about the Bells which proved to be my Bells. I was delighted with that, but now you come up with so very much. I was so glad to learn the name of Duncan Bell's wife and her parents. Now I shall be able to trace them in Conn.

The day before we went to Napanee we went all around the Prince Edward peninsula and back through Bath. I had listed from home here the name of M. H. Young as clerk, but it was early in the morning and the town was still asleep in the morning when we went through. What a strange coincidence that you write in all this material. Now I am very curious as to how you are related to the Bells and me. I shall stop with William Bell now and not go further in Scotland, as I still have plenty to do in this country to trace my ancestors. I have recently found that my John Brewer who settled in Wilson, Niagara Co., N. Y., (father of James Hough Taylor's wife Harriett) came from Canada in 1807. Perhaps he was a Loyalist too, so if you ever come across that name please keep me in mind.

We expected to be in Canada before this time this summer and probably would have been had we not had an automobile accident in May, which took quite some time to repair. I fully expected to go through the cemeteries in Fredericksburg looking for some of my Bells. Abigail died and was buried in New Hudson, Oakland Co., Mich. Dec. 15, 1849, and Abraham Taylor died July 6, 1865 in Allendale, Ottawa Co., Mich. All my grandparents and great grandparents were buried in the Allendale cemetery, but I do not think it was established until after Abraham died, so probably he was buried on his son's farm. I have been told where the farm was.

If John Taylor and wife Agnes were my ancestors, they must have had children: Abraham, perhaps John, Jr., William, Allen and Sarah. I doubt if this Jared Tyler is one of the sons. In the records I found that Abraham Taylor was witness at Sarah Taylors' and Alpheus Cadman's wedding in 1802, so evidently Abraham and Sarah were brother and sister.

Let me thank you again for taking the time to write the extensive record for me. I had never had any hope of ever finding anything about the family of Abraham Taylor's wife, Abigail. Mr. Parks loaned me a rare old book when I was there "Methodism in Canada", the complete history of the organization of the Methodist church in Canada by William Losee, who had his first pastorate in Fredericksburg. He was from New York State and it stated that he came with relatives from N. Y. Since Abraham came from New York and his middle name was Losy (Losee) I was sure there must be some family connection. In Dutchess County, N. Y., where Abraham was born there were at least four Abraham Losees during the Revolution. I thought perhaps Abraham Taylor's mother's name had been Losy and she had named her son for her father. Proof of that is yet to be found.

I would be glad to hear from you again.

Sincerely yours,

Amy Brown Lewis

Dear Mr. Burleigh:

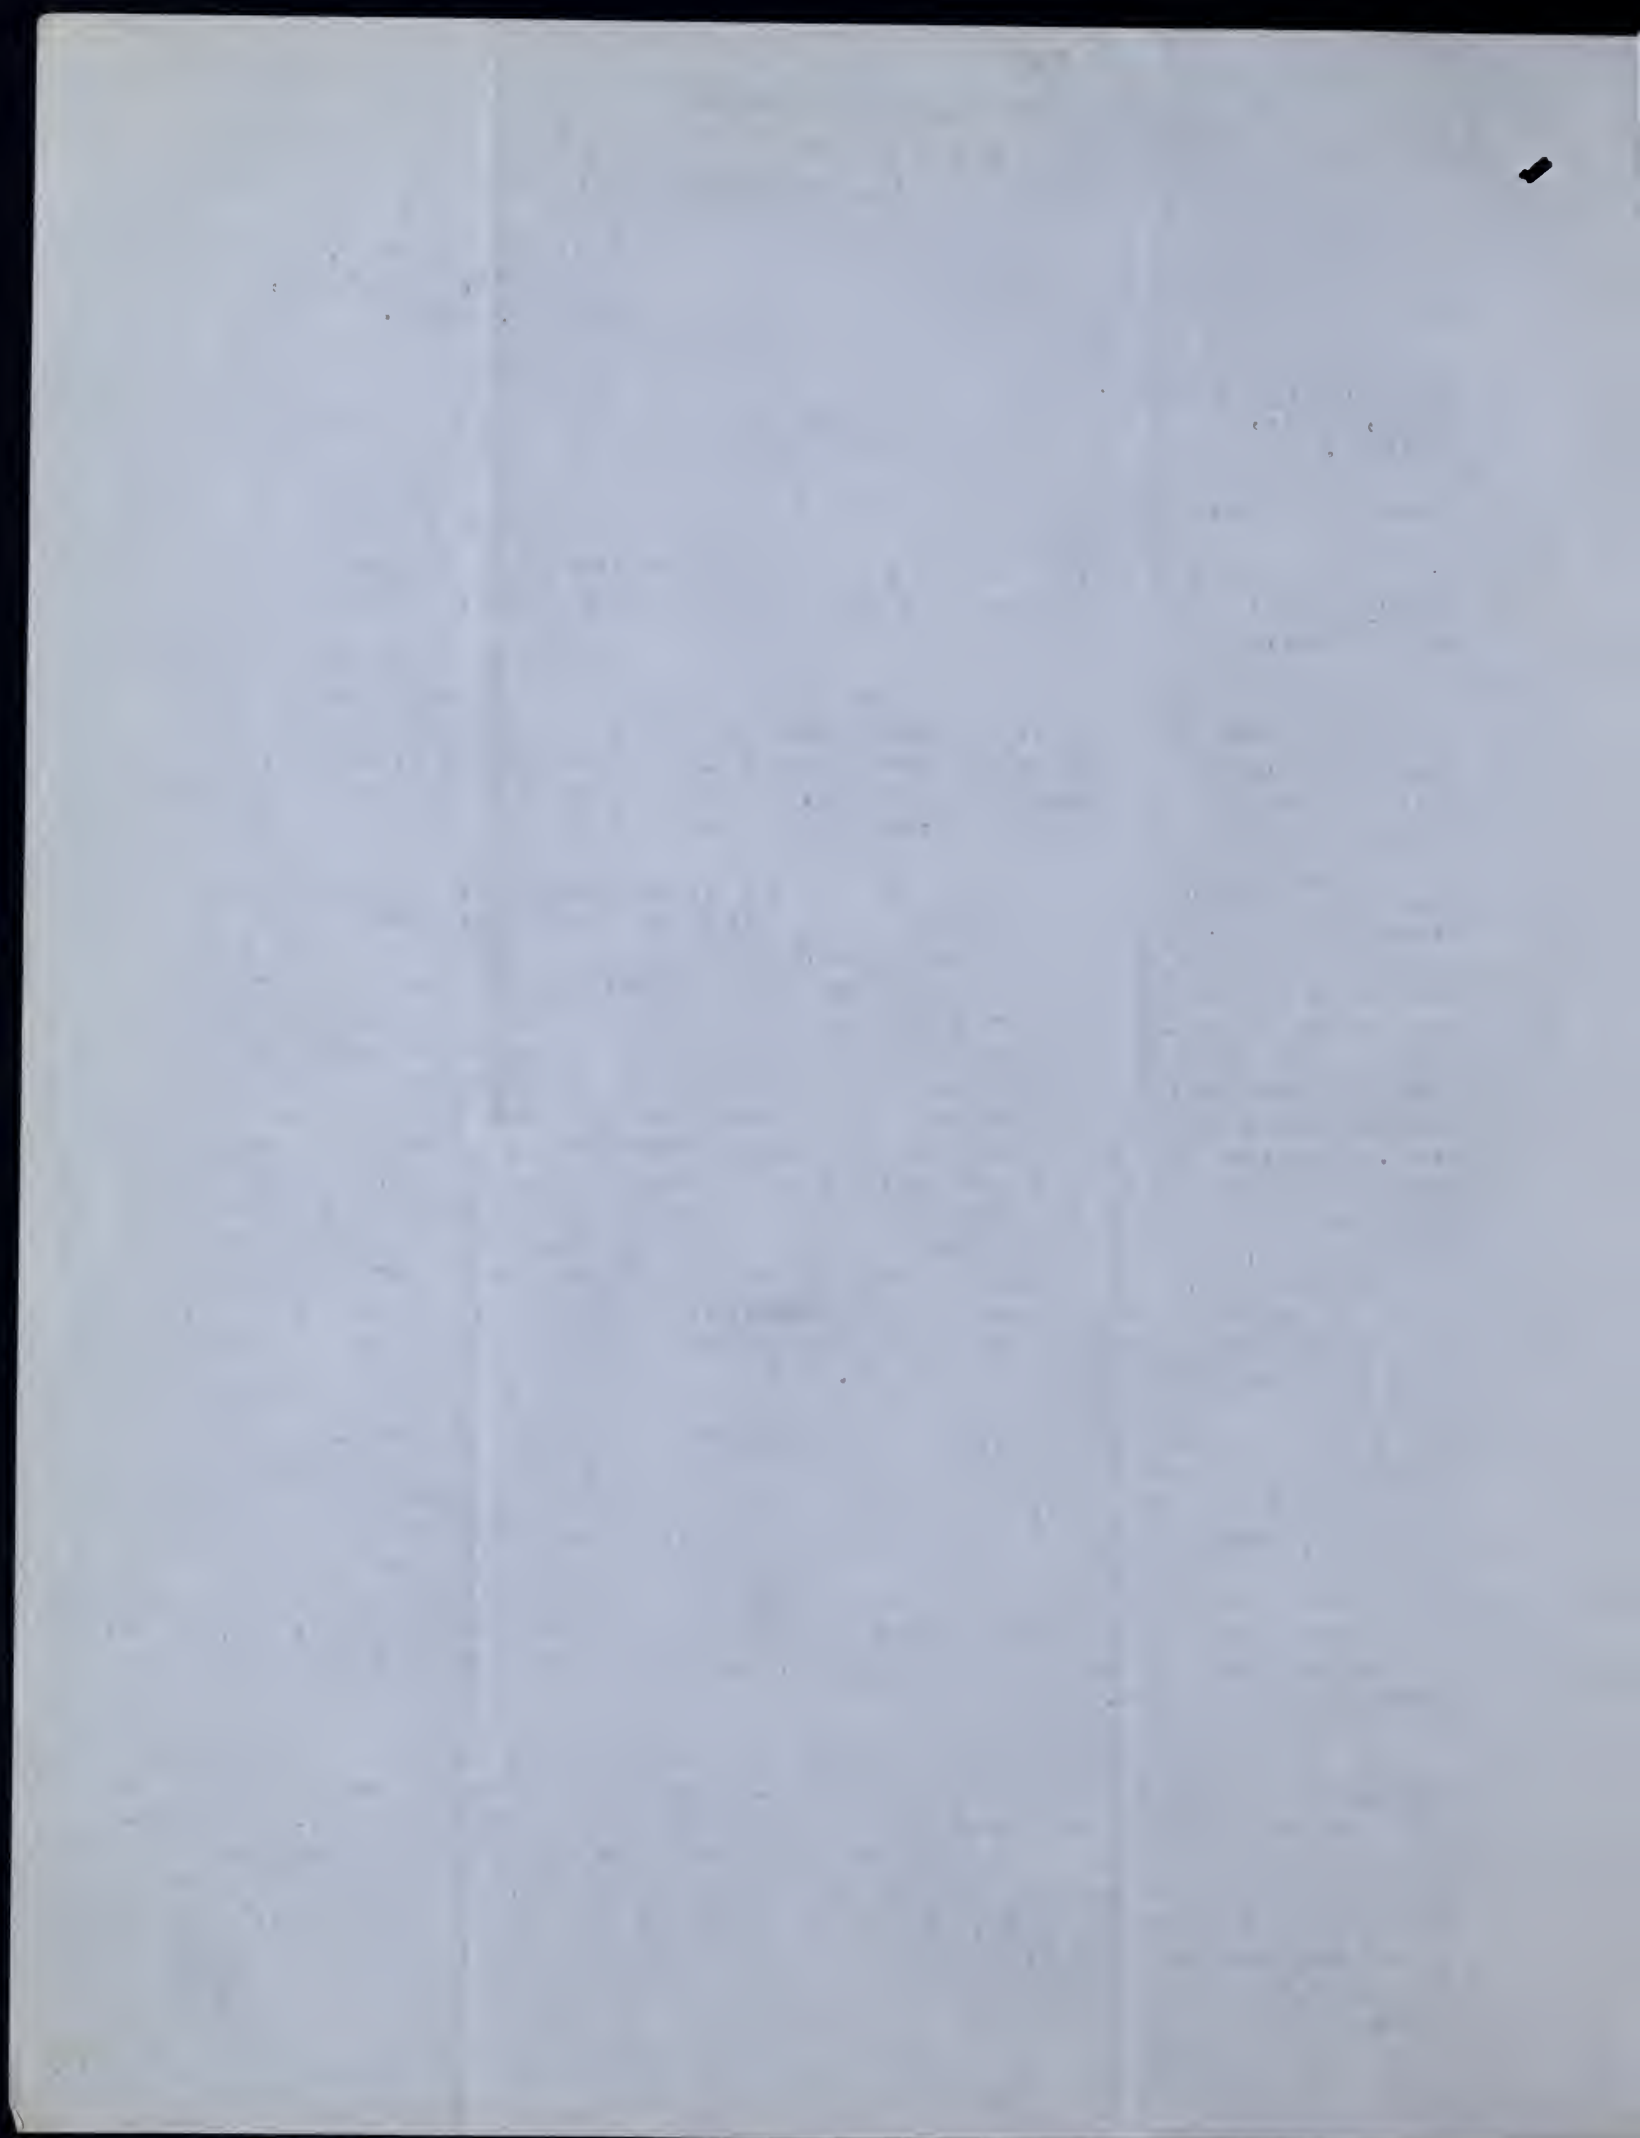

I was very much thrilled to receive your answer to my query about the Taylors-Bells in the Hartford Times, and wish to thank you.

After sending in the query I had been lucky enough to stumble onto the Fredericksburg Church records compiled by the Ontario Historical Society and placed in the Burton Historical Collection of the Detroit Library. From those vital records I was able to compile to some degree the family of Duncan Bell.

Abraham Losy Taylor was my great-great grandfather and came to Mich. probably about 1836, when the son of James Hough Taylor and his wife Harriet Brewer was born in Detroit. This son was named John Taylor. I had the birthdates of Abraham Taylor and wife Abigail (name not known) their son James from the family bible with the information that Abigail and James were born in Fredericksburg. On the strength of that my husband and I went to Canada last summer to search for them. We arrived in Napanee on Sat. morning and the Court house was closed so I could not look up any land records. I found Mr. Leonard Parks at Hay Bay, but he knew nothing about the Taylors. He thought probably they had moved away, and in a history book he had he found a Taylor cemetery in Belleville. He sent us over there and there had been a great deal of controversy about the cemetery. Eventually we located it, but there was nothing left but two broken stones lying on the ground and it was being used as a road.

The first person buried there had been a Lieut. and the next was the mother of John Taylor. She had been brought to the place by her only son, two having been executed by the rebels during the war, when almost ninety years of age. Mr. Parks thought this might have been my ancestor. At the time I gave up, but now that you send this data about John Taylor, perhaps they are mine. Do you know where the John Taylor you mentioned was buried Dec. 11, 1789. If he was buried in Fredericksburg, the ones down in Belleville were probably not mine.

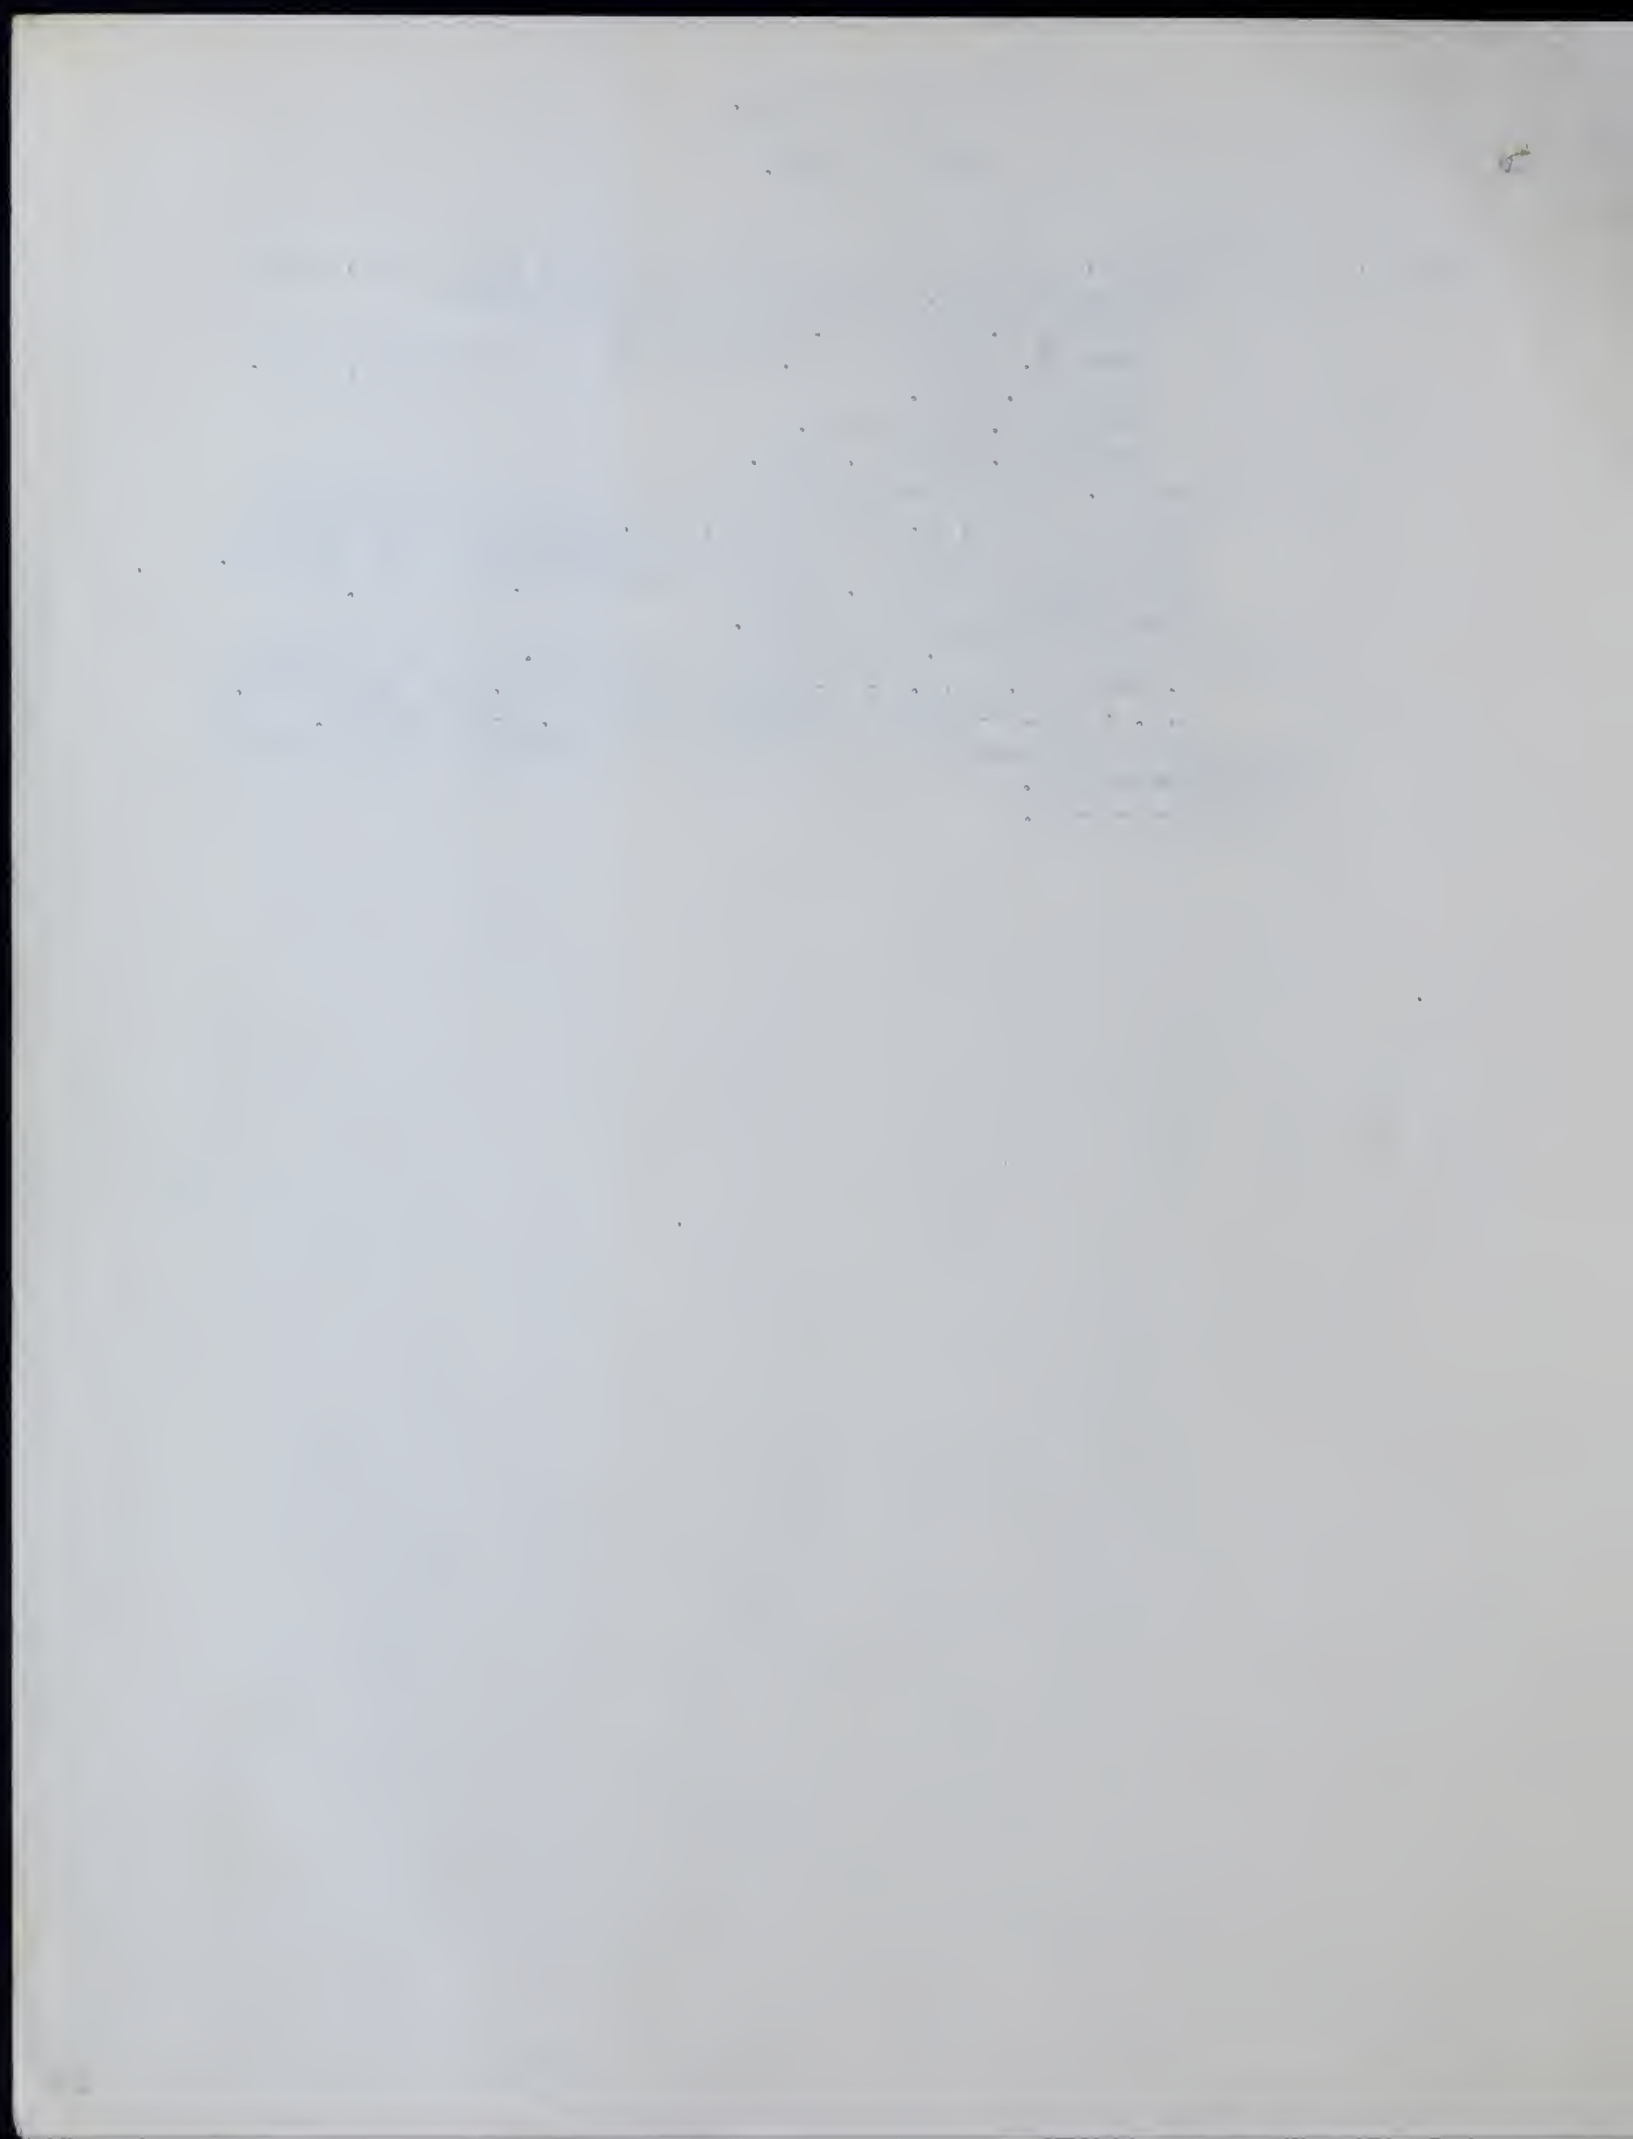

I found my Brown family up in Carleton Place last summer by calling a Brown on the telephone. She proved to be descended from my great-great grandfather Jonah Brown who went to Leeds Co. in 1790. Her brother who lives in Ottawa searched the archives all winter and came up with an amazing amount of Brown material, and I also had him searching for my Taylors, though they were not related to him. He came across the application of Abigail Bell Taylor asking for land as daughter of U. E. Loyalist Duncan Bell. That was how I got the name "Bell".

The valuable are protected by the government. An army of department employees, biologists, make detailed surveys of food supplies, water temperatures, and the spread of disease. One group devotes its time to recording the ages of fish caught every year.

A close check is kept on the number of fish taken from the lakes yearly, and the amount left for breeding purposes. Government ra equipped launches patrol the lakes enforcing the laws under the Fish Dealers Act.

Operation of eight hatcheries and several spawning camps keeps the province's lakes well stocked for both commercial and sport fishing. Billions of eggs are collected and processed each year. They are allowed to hatch during the winter months and are transported by air to specific lakes in the spring. A process has been developed whereby fertile and infertile eggs are separated, thus saving time and shipping costs.

Don Bradman, Australia's greatest batsman, held the previous record with a 334-total rolled up at Leeds in 1930. Hutton's captain, Walter Hammond, had held the world test record with a 336-total against New Zealand in 1936.

But the Ashes—nickname for the elusive prize for the world series of cricket—will stay down under because the best England could do was split even in four games of a five-game series. The other match, scheduled for Manchester, was rained out.

Even at that English fans were well satisfied, for Hutton's batting and the English eleven's great fifth game when they trounced their rivals by an innings and 579 runs were looked upon as the next thing to winning the old series.

English athletes started the year by dashing the hopes of experts and failing to top the list at the Empire Games at Sydney. They failed in the face of C. B. Holmes' fine start with victories in the 100 yards

Born abt 1838. son of Daniel Fraser Bell. Grandson of Wm McCordale Bell, U.E. who came to Canada on or about the close of the American Rebellion. He was an old British soldier & I believe in some of the great battles of the British army in Europe. He was a resident of New York State when the rebellion began in 1774 & refused to take up arms against the Br. flag. His property was, therefore, confiscated by the Americans & he came to Canada. He did service in the Br. cause & as a loyalist he drew land for all his sons. The M. Ramsey Carscallen a dau. of Luke Carscallen, who also served as a British officer. Their (my grandparents) ch. were Wm. John, James Edward & Daniel Fraser. They had several daughters, but I do not know well their history. One was a Bells, another an Embury, one a Diamond, another a Wough, and one a Phillips. They were nearly all residents of Fredericksburg where their descendants are yet numerous and respectable.

BELL

Canniff's History of the Settlement of Upper Canada

William Bell--We shall have occasion to speak of William Bell in different places in these pages. He was born August 12, 1758, in County of Tyrone, Ireland.

At the time of the Revolutionary War he was a sergeant in the 53rd regiment of the line. Some time after the close of the war, he succeeded in procuring his discharge from the service, at Lachine, and came to Cataraqui, sometime in 1789. He was on intimate terms with John Ferguson, and, we believe, related by marriage. It was at Ferguson's solicitation that Bell came to the Bay. We have before us an old account book, by which we learn that Ferguson and Bell commenced trading on the front of Sidney in the latter part of 1789. Subsequently Bell became school teacher to the Mohawks, and seems to have done business there in the way of trading, in 1799. In 1803 we find him settled in Thurlow. Ferguson, who was living at Kingston, had been appointed Colonel of the Hastings Militia, and Bell was selected by him to assist in organizing the body. He was commissioned captain in December 1798, Major in August, 1800; and in 1809 Lieutenant-Colonel. Colonel Bell was well known as a public man in Thurlow. He was appointed to several offices--Magistrate, Coroner, and finally Colonel of the Hastings Battalion. As magistrate he took an active part in the doings of Thurlow and Belleville for many years. He was also an active person in connection with the agricultural societies, until a few years before his death, 1833.

The papers left by Colonel Bell have been of great service to us.

His wife's name was Rachel Hare, who died 1853, aged eighty-one.

Letter Dated 1772 Is Now in Desmond

ENTERPRISE — Fred T. Bell of Desmond has an interesting letter in his possession that was written nearly one hundred and sixty-five years ago. It is a letter of recommendation given to William Bell and his family, consisting of his wife, five children and his sister Isabel Bell when they left Scotland for what is now the United States of America.

It is dated the 3rd Day of May, 1772, at Castleton Manse, Parish of Castleton Scotland, and states—the family mentioned above have lived in that parish since infancy being born here—free from all public scandal or ground of church censure—so that there is nothing wherefore that they may not be received into any congregation or church society that providence may cast their lot. The interesting letter is signed by Robert Rutherford, minister, and Will Elliott and James Armstrong, wardens.

Following the Revolutionary War in the United States, 1783, the family were among the United Empire Loyalists who came to Canada and settled near Adolphustown.
